

Planning a Website

Now that you have had time to think about your website and try out "frames" in HTML, I would like to see a sketch of what will appear on the pages you are going to create.

Your main page will be the page that loads the frames. I want you to indicate with the use of lines how your frames will appear. Also, include any titles, subtitles that I will find at your site. In a general way, you can indicate any links or graphics that will appear.

Main Page

On this side I would like to see some of the pages that you will design for the purposes of the site. You will need to have at least two pages to link to that you have created. Please provide a sketch of the items that will be found on these pages.
